Anjou Colour ® Force 9 Slate Hooks:

Anjou Color ® Force 9 Slate Hooks represent a new concept in the design and appearance of traditional stainless steel slate hooks. They are manufactured by a unique process, offering up to 185 available colours, and are the only slate hooks coated after fabrication and protected by a highly durable polyester paint finish. So durable is the colour coating that it is guaranteed for 10 years, even when fixed in the heavily salt laden conditions found in coastal locations. (The warranty includes the removal and re-installation of the slates)

In recent years there has been a big increase in the use of lighter coloured slates in the UK market, in particular the Brazilian Grey/Green Slate, which is widely recognized as being particularly suited to hook fixing, due to difficulty in holing the slate by traditional methods. Hook fixing will consequently reduce wastage during installation.

Anjou Color slate hooks are now available in a Grey/Green colour , chosen to compliment the Brazilian slate, whilst also blending well with other light grey natural slates.

Traditional black slate hooks have a coating thickness of approximately 10 microns. The polyester coating on Anjou Color hooks is up to 10x thicker at 100 microns.

Anjou Color Slate Hooks are available in several profiles, straight shank, crosinus and in the Force 9 pattern. Force 9 hooks are produced with a slight camber in the length, designed to make the slate lay flatter on the roof and the point is serrated to provide a better fixing into the batten or sarking.
